Supplementary material

Due to space limitations, we include the details of several important information in this supplementary material. Section 1 includes the explanation for the regexp used in our motivating example, whereas Section 2 includes the details of each evaluated unresolved PRs for our evaluation of automated code review. Section 3 contains the questions that we have asked in the survey of the ease of writing regex rules for our approach.

1   Explanation of regexp

In Section 2, we show a simplified version of the regular expression designed for the self computation patterns. We include the full regular expression below and our design considerations.

(\b\w(?:[\w.]|(?P<aux1>\((?:[^()]++|(?&aux1))\))))\s*([|^&-])\s*(\w(?:[\w.]|(?&aux1))*)

operand 1 — named capturing group — operator — operand 2

The regexp above aims to extract the two operands of an expression for subsequent comparison. It will match operands of the form `obj`, `obj.name` or `obj.call(...)`. We use `\b\w` to ensure that the matching starts at the beginning of each word (i.e., when the subsequent patterns fail to match, the regex engine can quickly move to the start of the next word without unnecessary backtracking). The named capturing group (`?P<aux1>\(...\)`) can match pairs of parentheses, and we refer to the capturing group with (`?&aux1`) in the second operand.

2   Detailed data of evaluation

We changed the name of the GitHub account in Figure 3 in the main paper to help readers to understand which comments are generated by our tool. In reality, we created seven GitHub accounts to leave the comment automatically generated by Codegex. The created usernames in GitHub include: (1) rubieHess, (2) kieraCurtis, (3) ellieMayVelasquez, (4) lyndseyBeil, (5) aidanBurton, (6) lillieMaiBauer, (7) abidaJustice. The creation of multiple accounts is due to the limit imposed by GitHub on the (1) limited number comments that we can leave per day per account, (2) limited number of accounts created from the same IP. The usernames for the GitHub accounts are selected randomly to maintain anonymous identity for double-blind submission.

The source code and all our experimental data are publicly available at the anonymous link at `https://github.com/codegex-analysis/codegex-evaluation`. Our website is available at `https://codegex-analysis.github.io`

[1] The '# EPR' column shows the number of evaluated PRs for each project.

[2] The '# AT' column shows the maximum value of the total number of files for each evaluated project.

[3] The '# IT' column shows the minimum value of the total number of files for each evaluated project.

[4] The '# AJ' column shows the maximum value of the total number of Java files for each evaluated project.

[5] The '# IJ' column shows the minimum value of the total number of Java files for each evaluation project.

[6] The '# AL' column shows the maximum value of the total code lines changed of Java files for each evaluated project.

[7] The '# IL' column shows the minimum value of the total code lines changed of Java files for each evaluated project.

[8] The first column shows the total value of all '# EPR' , and the last six columns show the extreme value of each column.

3 Survey questions on the ease of writing regex rules

As our approach relies on a set of regex rules, we conducted a survey to evaluate the ease of writing regex rules. Participation was on a voluntary basis and all participants had the right to refuse participation. We also obtained ethical approval from the Institutional Review Board (IRB) of our institute for the survey.

As the survey only contains five questions, it takes only less than a minute for each participant to complete the survey. To avoid violation to the double-blind policy, we did not include other demographic information (e.g., gender, age, geographical location) about the participants of the survey.

Below are the questions that we have asked in the survey:

Codegex

1. How much experience (years) do you have with the Java programming language? [single choice] *

2. How much experience (years) do you have with the Python programming language? [single choice] *

3. How familiar are you with regular expressions，ranging from unfamiliar (score = 1) to expert (score = 5)? [single choice] *

4. What is the estimated average time (hours) it took you to implement the bug pattern? [fill in the blank] *

5. What do you think is the estimated average difficulty of implementing a bug pattern in Spotbugs by regex, from simple (score = 1) to difficult (score = 5)? [single choice] *
